

CREATIVE JOURNALING FOR WELLBEING

A Write for your Life guide

Journaling helps you to connect to yourself, process experiences and make sense of the world. It can relieve stress, help you to express yourself and so much more. These exercises for wellbeing will help you to:

- Get out of your head
- Be mindful
- Be grateful

THE EXERCISES

Free-writing instructions - optional:

- Set a timer for five minutes - you can always write for longer if you get into the flow.
- Keep your pen moving, do not edit or look back - no grammar or spelling required.
- Go where your pen goes, trust it'll be useful - even if it's off topic.
- If emotions arise, carry on if it feels OK or write about something else and return when you're ready/have support.
- For each exercise, reflect on what you wrote, read it out loud for extra perspective.

Externalise the internal: 'Whine Bar'

Running a workshop in a wine bar gave me inspiration for this exercise. Sometimes it's really hard to feel safe to be negative and have a good moan, or a whine. Here, I invite you to really get stuck in. List everything that's annoying or irritating you, that's frustrating etc. We're human and we're allowed to feel these things, it's OK. Your journal is a safe place where you can indulge, feel it and move on. So externalise those feelings and thoughts and give yourself a little freedom.

To be mindful: 'Six senses'

Bringing yourself into the here and now - being mindful - can be transformative, either proactively or reactively, if you're feeling stressed, overwhelmed, anxious etc., this exercise invites you to write about everything you're experiencing, right now. What do you hear, see, feel, smell, taste, are you warm, cold, comfortable, etc. When you've finished, take a nice big breath. You can also choose to focus on what's going on outside of you if that feels better.

To be grateful: 'Gratitude bombing'

The idea here is to pick one thing you're grateful for and really dig into the detail. So don't just say "I really like coffee," (one of my favourites), describe its smell, taste, how it feels to drink it, prepare it, etc.

These exercises are never meant to replace meaningful one-to-one work, but can be really profound when used alongside therapy, coaching etc.
